フォーラム：光学：議論の焦点は「完全レンズ」

Tomáš Tyc & Xiang Zhang

Nature 480, 42–43 (01 December 2011) doi:10.1038/480042a
Published online 30 November 2011

超高解像度のレンズを作製するには、光を逆方向に屈折させる材料が必要だと考えられている。これに対し、従来の正の屈折率を持つ媒体でも超高解像度は得られるという考え方もあるが、これについては論争が続いている。対立する陣営を支持している2人の専門家が、この問題についてのそれぞれの考えを説明した。

Subject terms: Physics  Applied physics and engineering

Author information
Affiliations
Tomáš Tyc is in the Faculties of Science and of Informatics, Masaryk University, 61137 Brno, Czech Republic.

Xiang Zhang is in the NSF Nanoscale Science and Engineering Center, University of California, Berkeley, Berkeley, California 94720–1740, USA.

Corresponding authors
Correspondence to: Tomáš Tyc or Xiang Zhang

Comments
There are currently no comments.

Subscribe to comments

This is a public forum. Please keep to our Community Guidelines. You can be controversial, but please don’t get personal or offensive and do keep it brief. Remember our threads are for feedback and discussion - not for publishing papers, press releases or advertisements. If you find something abusive or inappropriate or which does not otherwise comply with our Terms or Community Guidelines, please select the relevant ‘Report this comment’ link.

You need to be registered with Nature and agree to our Community Guidelines to leave a comment. Please log in or register as a new user. You will be re-directed back to this page.

Nature ISSN 0028-0836  EISSN 1476-4687

partner of AGORA, HINARI, OARE, INASP, ORCID, CrossRef and COUNTER